

Understanding and implementing the Opening Worlds humanities curriculum A Conference for Cambridgeshire schools

Friday 29 November

9.30 am – 2.30 pm

Littleport Community Primary School

Already teaching Opening Worlds and want to strengthen your practice?

Heard of Opening Worlds and you would now like to learn more?

Just want to know more about how a knowledge-rich curriculum works and its remarkable impact on literacy?

Come for the day or just the morning, and enjoy sessions on:

- what a strong Opening Worlds lesson looks like – sharpen that storytelling, capture that flow, energise all pupils with intensive oral practice;
- progression: how sequencing & high-leverage teaching unlock vocabulary access for all;
- being subject-led in your pedagogy;
- leading staff to ensure quality and consistency.

Attendance and all refreshments
FREE
Book here

During the day, Christine Counsell and Steve Mastin, creators of Opening Worlds, will work with Cambridgeshire leaders to demonstrate strong practice. For further information, contact:

Emma Fuller – emma.fuller@cambridgeshire.gov.uk
or Becky Layfield – blayfield@robertarkenstall.co.uk

Opening Worlds is now taught in over 300 primary schools nationally. Opening Worlds communities have been established in every region of England, from Liverpool, Newcastle and Birmingham to Cornwall, London and Kent.

“ The Opening Worlds curriculum continues to have an immeasurable impact on our children. Not only does it provide them with incredibly rich knowledge that they love to share, it also evokes awe and wonder, challenging their curiosity in a wonderful way. Thank you! ”

Jamie Wilson, Headteacher, Banks Road Primary School, Liverpool.

“ In my entire career, I have never been part of anything that is as transformational for children and adults as Opening Worlds – it is breathtaking. Lessons are full of joy. The impact on reading and writing at length has been rapid. ”

Penny Boardman, School Effectiveness Lead, Extend Learning Academies Trust, Somerset.

There is some limited parking available in the school carpark. Parking is also available along Woodfen Road, before the left-hand turning onto Parsons Lane.

