

The Communication Chain

The processes involved in understanding and conveying a message between a listener and a speaker are complex and interlinked. The Communication Chain is a simplified representation of what is involved but it highlights some of the key skills required to communicate verbally.

The skills are dependent upon each other. A problem in one area is likely to impact on another.

Diagram taken from Elklan's 'Let's Talk with the Under Fives'.